the principals avails success. At a meeting held with City Superintendent Christensen they assured him that they would bend every effort to assist the teachers in raising the requisite amount to meet the salaries of the predagogues, and thereby insure the schools remaining open until June.

The matter in a general way only consensus of opinion was that it would concensus of opinion was that it would concensus of opinion was that it would be ample time in which to discuss minor details after the attempt to raise the money by general tuition had been tried. Although some of the principals did not think the proposed plan was a good one, or would succeed, they were emphatic in their declarations to the superintendent and their fellow principals that they would assist the teachers under them in every way possible to bring about the desired result.

Teachers Anxious to Go On.

The discussions on the proposition brought out the fact that there is not, apparently, as much opposition to the tuition scheme among the teachers as statements to that effect would cause one to believe. It is a fact that some of the teachers are opposed to it. of the teachers are opposed to it; others decline to express an opinion until they have an idea as to how it is going to work out, while there are others who are almost willing to teach the remaining few weeks for nothing rather than have their pupils lose the benefits of the finishing touches to their advantion which will be the indication. their education which will be received during that period.
